

My Flash Card Homework - Simple Guide

The point this week: Keep doing normal life, but pay more attention to how I motivate myself, where my attention is, and whether I'm actually noticing and enjoying life.

CARROT, NOT STICK What it means: Stop relying on giving myself shit to get things done. Practise: Notice self-criticism or 'I should...' thoughts. Remember why the action matters to me and use my values as the reason to act. Log: A time I noticed the stick and changed my approach.	BE PRESENT What it means: Give what I'm doing, and especially the people I'm with, my proper attention instead of constantly being somewhere else in my head. Practise: Notice when my mind wanders, bring myself back, properly listen and engage. Log: A time I noticed myself being properly present.
ENJOY MY FOOD What it means: Don't eat everything on autopilot. Practise: Occasionally slow down and notice the taste, smell and texture. Give myself a chance to actually enjoy the meal. Log: Something I ate that I deliberately slowed down and enjoyed. I don't need to analyse every mouthful. One meal, or even part of one, is enough.	FIND THE TREASURE What it means: Notice ordinary good things that are already there instead of letting them disappear into the background. Practise: Notice things like being outside, plants, home, family, pets, a book, food, nature or simply a decent moment. Log: One ordinary thing I genuinely noticed and appreciated.

WHAT I NEED TO LOG FOR FRIDAY

Carrot: What mattered and what I did. Present: A moment when I was properly there.

Food: Something I slowed down and enjoyed. Treasure: Something ordinary I noticed and appreciated.

Important: This isn't four more goals to achieve. I'm already working on avoidance, reading, the allotment, work boundaries and getting back into normal life. These cards are about how I experience those things while I'm doing them.

For Friday, I just want a few genuine examples to talk through with Kirsty. No need to manufacture examples or tick every box every day.
